
79.5% of errors land on the nearest constellation point, against a 14.3% chance level (5.6x).
The classifier loss never supplies the constellation geometry - it is recovered from the data.